Avoid Excess
Uric Acid!

To Be Well There Must Be Proper Kidney Action.

A STIFF, aching feeling is a common sign of sluggish kidneys and excess uric acid.
One is apt to be tired and languid; nervous and depressed;
suffering from backache, headaches and dizziness. A common warning of sluggish kidney action is scanty or burning secretions. Doan's Pills, by stimulating the activity of the kidneys, assist them to eliminate excess uric acid. If your kidneys are acting sluggishly, use Doan's. They have been recommended since 1885. Are endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Oxford, ss.

To the Honorable Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court to be held at Paris, within and for said County of Oxford, on the second Tuesday of February, A. D. 1928.

Respectfully Represents, Edith Pearl Ames, resident at Randolph, in the County of Oxford and State of Maine, that she was lawfully married to Harold Floyd Ames, formerly of Portland in the County of Cumberland and State of Maine, now of parts unknown, at Portland in the County of Cumberland and
State of Maine on the eighth day of August
A. D. 1914, by George Hinchey, Esq., Justice of the Peace, duly authorized to solemnize marriages therein.

That the Libellant and Libellea cohabited in this State after their said marriage.

That the Libellant resided in this State when the cause of divorce accrued as hereinafter set forth.

That the Libellant has resided in this State in good faith for one year prior to the commencement of these proceedings.

That the Libellant has ever been faithful to her marriage obligations, but that the said
Libellea has been unfaithful of the same.

That there is no collusion between the Libellant and the said Libellea to obtain a divorce.

That on the sixth day of July, A. D. 1920, said Libellea utterly deserted your Libellant without reasonable cause and has continued said desertion for three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this bill.

That being of sufficient ability and being able to labor and provide for her, said Libellea wanton and cruelly refuses or refuses to provide suitable maintenance for your Libellant.

That one child has been born to them during their said marriage, now living, viz: Floyd Elroy Ames, aged twelve (12) years.

Wherefore, your Libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and the said Libellea may be decreed;
and that the care and custody of their minor child, Floyd Elroy Ames, may be given to said Libellant.

And your Libellant further alleges that the residence of said Libellea is unknown to your Libellant and cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence.

Dated at Norway this eighth day of October, A. D. 1927.

Chester Ladd went to the Lakes for a few days' hunting, recently. Mrs. A. D. Merrill has sold her stand to Walter Abbott of North Rumford.

Our Trip Down East

Eastport to Rockland

By Ralph M. Bacon

Eastport was in sight. From the waters of Passamaquoddy bay the city presented a very beautiful appearance, situated as it is on a high point of land overlooking the bay. A long line of sardine factories lined the waterfront and smoke was rising from a few but most of them were idle, as the season was late this year. It was low tide and as our boat approached, the wharves appeared about twice as high from the water as in most places. This region has the highest tides in the world running anywhere from eighteen to twenty-seven feet.

We were now about to enter upon the most exciting part of our trip. Although the waters on the bay had seemed very calm there was certainly some swell in among the wharves. In order to land, it became necessary to get from our freight boat into a small row boat and take a short ride around to another landing place. The waters were tossing about rather fitfully, it seemed to us. My sister made the boat first, I followed, and then our good captain soon had us ashore but cannot say that we were very good sailors. I never was seasick but a little more tossing in a small boat and I am quite sure I should have been seeing two oceans instead of one.

We had just had headquarters established in the new Quoddy Hotel with rooms facing Eastport's beautiful harbor and bay. Eastport itself is an island, although connected with the mainland by a causeway. All around the outskirts of the town are tiny rough shacks which people occupy during the sardine catching season and then close up for the rest of the year. Prosperity did not seem so much in evidence in Eastport as one could wish for. Perhaps the many unexpected houses gave the place an appearance of poverty that it did not deserve. But here as at Calais were signs of a new day coming. The building of the Cooper dam could not fail to be a boon for the whole section. Eastport has a most wonderful harbor and the scenery is all that could be desired. Down the bay are the three Canadian islands of Campbell, Grand Manan and Deer Island. To the North-east are the hills and mountains of New Brunswick. Two miles across the bay to the right is Lubec, although it is over forty miles away by land.

The soil all about Eastport seems very fertile. We could not help noticing that potatoes and garden stuff were much better here than in Oxford County. The sardine industry, however, is what makes Eastport. There are twelve canning factories here besides a few grocery, machine shops and lumber mills. Eastport hospitality is unbounded. The folks are just glad to have you there. Eastern Maine does not need to cultivate hospitality; it already has it. There is something about the sea the mountains and the great open spaces that develops the finest people in the world and because it has so many mountains and so much seacoast our state of Maine has produced some of the best folks to be found anywhere hospitable down east Yankees. Eastport, Maine, has its share of them. Wednesday morning we decided to visit Lubec. It is a delightful sail, but a very short one for the little steamer that serves as a ferry. Lubec is very nearly the size of Eastport but seems more prosperous. There are many sardine and fish curing establishments, the canneries are well kept up and there are many beautiful homes. Lubec enjoys the reputation of being a town with a splendid community spirit and there were evidences of this on every hand. It also has the honor of being the most easterly town in the U. S. A.

It was nearly a five mile trip by auto from Lubec village to Quoddy Head, but it was well worth the time and expense. We never shall forget that trip. Densest wooded hills, fields covered with the brightest flowers, and an ever changing blue. Truly the most eastern point in the U. S. A. It is beautiful beyond description. The make boats and cedar chests and all sorts of interesting things at Lubec. Toy boats to be sure, but built like real boats and they certainly can sail. It was with regret that we had to cut our visit so short. Dinner at the hotel, then back to Eastport in the afternoon. It was hot at Eastport but cool compared with Boston. However the weather men put over the hottest for many a year and the two nights spent there were warm enough for comfort.

Thursday morning found us on the road to Bar Harbor. Our route was through the Indian village to the Passamaquoddy tribe, through Perry and Penabroke to Ayer Junction, where we changed to the train from Calais. From this point we retraced our route over which we came back to Bar Harbor, where we arrived about 12, established headquarters, had dinner and were ready to see the sights.

I had formed ideas about Bar Harbor which I soon found were all wrong. The town itself is not much different from other up-to-date Maine towns of the same size. The natives were just Maine folks. The prices were very reasonable. Every citizen of Maine should if possible visit Bar Harbor and Lafayette National Park. The scenery is beyond words to describe. It is easy to understand why Bar Harbor has become Maine's greatest summer resort. In the near vicinity are all the attractions which have made Maine the summer playground of the nation. Lofty mountain peaks, fresh water lakes, forests, rugged coast and sandy beaches, all these within the limits of this wonderful island.

We took the forty mile bus ride around the island in the afternoon. It is indeed the combination of all the glorious scenery of Maine within a very small area. It was a cloudy afternoon so we were not seeing the beautiful region at its best. Back in Bar Harbor we encountered a terrific thunder shower early in the evening. It cut off the lights and for a long time the town was in darkness. Finally they came on and then a strange thing happened. The fire whistle blew and out went the lights again. At last they came on to stay. It was a hot night in Bar Harbor, but from the headlines the Boston papers rejoiced that we were in Maine.

We had just time enough to take part of the shore walk in the morning. Instead of fencing up the shore as is done in some places the summer residents have built a most beautiful walk along the shore in front of their estates. This walk extends for a long distance with rustic bridges and here and there walks extending up through the estates into the town. No words can convey any idea of the beautiful scenery from this walk. It was just like a morning in June. Birds were singing, flowers were everywhere, with a blue ocean in front and blue mountains rising out of the sea.

It is eight miles to Mt. Desert Ferry and a very beautiful sail, touching at Sorrento and Hancock. From the Sorrento we got the train for Bangor, arriving in the Queen City in time to make connections with the Boston boat. The sail down the Penobscot is even more beautiful than coming up the river. From the upper deck, we could hear the birds singing from the bank. After leaving Bangor our weather again failed us and a heavy rain set in. We arrived at Rockland about 8 o'clock, having touched at Winterville, Bucksport, Belfast, Northport, and Camden on the way. Rockland seemed more like home to us as we had visited the city two years before. Almost everybody that has ever visited the place loves the old town. It is a real Yankee city with a splendid community spirit. With its fine harbor and big industries locating in and about the city, Rockland is becoming one of the bright spots in Maine. A good night's rest and in the morning we were off to Portland. There are few railroad journeys any more attractive than from Rockland to Portland. The road follows the coast nearly all the way to Bath past the fine old towns of Thomaston, Waldoboro, Damariscotta and Wiscasset. At Bath we crossed the Kennebec on the ferry, probably for the last time as the new bridge is fast nearing completion. Portland was reached in time for dinner and at 7 P. M. we arrived at Bryant Pond and our trip down east was over. We had traveled over 700 miles since we left the preceding Saturday. We realized as never before the vastness of our state compared with the other New England states. It is a state of wonderful natural resources and opportunities with all signs pointing to the fact that Maine's day is coming and coming fast.

SUMNER—LABRADOR POND The Grange fair held at East Sumner, October 6th, was in every way a success. The school exhibit was very good indeed. Mrs. Lena Andrews is stopping at the home in Redding and has a crew picking her apples.

Mrs. John Libby recently underwent an operation on her throat at the C. M. G. Hospital.

Leland Andrews was in Lewiston, Friday of last week to consult a doctor in regard to the trouble with his side and stomach. He has been suffering with it more or less for the past year, and the doctor tells him it is gall stones causing his pain. He is treating him for it and thinks he can help him.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Estee of South Paris, were dinner guests, recently, of Mr. and Mrs. Lena Andrews.

Mrs. Lynn Dyer, who has been confined to her bed since better at this writing, and is about the house. Frances Pollard had her center for her a few days but has now returned to her home at East Sumner.

Clarence and Nella Dyer were home over the week end.

OTISFIELD Marshall Barrows is working for Phoenix.

Ethel M. Webber, wife of Alfred Webber, on Oak Hill, passed away October 1st. Mrs. Webber has been a brave sufferer for several years. Internment at Madison, N. H.

Supreme Judicial Court

William S. Bennett, administrator of the estate of his father, Nathaniel Bennett, late of Norway, was awarded $1,162.50 by the jury in the action against Harland P. Haskell of East Waterford. Five thousand dollars was named in the writ. This verdict was for damages resulting from a collision at Norway Lake early Saturday evening, October 23, 1926, when the defendant's automobile struck Nathaniel Bennett, aged 70, causing injuries which resulted in his death the following morning.

According to the testimony, Mr. Bennett was walking on or near the highway toward Jack Smith's store. When near the junction of the Harrison road, he was hit by the automobile operated by the defendant. The car was traveling toward Norway village and in the same direction taken by the victim. The right mud guard struck the man, who was knocked down and the car passed over him. Mr. Haskell stopped a short distance away, then he and his father, who was a passenger, ran back to the injured man. About this time, Arthur Walker of Oxford arrived on the scene and assisted in calling for help.

The plaintiff charged the defendant with negligence in operating the car under conditions of congested traffic and obscured vision, in a built up section, where more than ordinary vigilance was necessary.

Haskell said he entered the village on low speed, with brakes and lights in good condition, that his attention was on a car approaching and one other coming from the Harrison road. He said Mr. Bennett appeared suddenly in front of the car and was turned sharply to the left to pass around him. Almost at the same time the impact came. He stopped at the same time as possible.

Arthur Walker, an eye witness to the accident, told how he was approaching from Norway, intending to turn onto the Harrison road, and was on the lake side of the highway. By his lights, it appeared to him that Mr. Bennett stepped into the road almost in front of the Haskell car, immediately before the collision. He saw the body thrown toward the north or lake side of the highway.

The defendant argued that the victim contributed to the accident by his carelessness on the highway, that he was dazed by the approaching lights and wandered toward the middle of the road. Also his hearing was impaired.

The plaintiff introduced witnesses who alleged hearing of conversation at the Bennett home the following Monday, in which Mr. Haskell said he was himself blinded by the lights of a car approaching from Norway and could not see the road for any distance. Mr. Haskell denied making that statement in the home or anywhere.

Testimony was given to prove the Haskell auto was traveling east at the time of the accident on the right mud guard was emphasized to prove speed. The location where the car was stopped, several feet from the point of collision was important. The defendant testified that he trailed Warner Kendall from Waterford to Norway Lake. Kendall said the speed toward the village was about 8 miles.

Alton C. Wheeler appeared as the administrator, who represented the widow and three grown-up children. Eugene F. Smith for the defendant.

The bench of several cases, in which Benjamin J. Russell of Lovell brought suit against Joseph E. McAllister of Lovell for breach of contract. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant refused to accept a house he built for him, and that the sum being $1,500 as agreed upon.

The defense admitted the contract but alleged the work was defective and that the stipulated time and charged inferior material. In fact, the job was not satisfactory. He alleged that when a settlement was urged, the plaintiff added $200 to the price and he refused to accept the building.

Mr. Russell, who is a contractor and builder, told about the mutual agreement in writing. He said the contract called for the lot of land and construction and explained the terms of payment. The defendant was a carpenter employed part time on the particular house.

On cross-examination, McAllister admitted he knew most of the lumber was green, that many boards were not new and that the bricks in the chimney had been used before, but made no protest, he said, during the period of construction.

After the testimony was in, a recess was called and a settlement was made between the parties. A. C. Wheeler and E. Walker Abbott for Russell; Corliss and W. G. Conary for McAllister.

O. K. Clifford Co., Inc., of South Paris vs. Fred R. Sanborn of Fryeburg, formerly of Bridgton, was another case. A debt for gasoline furnished the defendant over a period of years. Mr. Sanborn operated a filling station in Bridgton and some years ago the firm known as Cole & Clifford, wholesalers of gas, supplied a pump owned by the defendant.

A bill of $96.65 was incurred, which was transferred to the O. K. Clifford Co. in 1925, when Cole & Clifford dissolved partnership, and later to the corporation, when it was formed.

In addition, a bill for $242.06 for oil and gas had accumulated under the management. Including $22.66 interest, the whole sum in the writ was $361.37.

The defendant alleged he had an understanding with his partner that if they used his pump, he should expect a reduction in wholesale price and presented a counter charge of $120.65 for rental value of the tank for a period of more than two years.

O. K. Clifford and Harry D. Cole admitted something was said by Mr. Sanborn about a discount, but they never accepted his proposition and that the discount price was charged and payments made during the time they supplied the pump. They offered documentary evidence to show that deliveries of gasoline had been accepted by Mr. Sanborn at the regular price during a period covering several months, and payments made without protest.

The jury returned a verdict for O. K. Clifford Co., Inc., in the sum of $361.37. Edgar F. Corliss for plaintiff and E. Walker Abbott for defendant.

The last civil case heard thus far was Charles F. Boober vs. Albert A. Towne, both of Norway. The suit was brought to recover damages to the amount of $10,000 for water flowing over the plaintiff's premises, alleged to be caused by a culvert installed by the defendant.

The defendant, Albert A. Towne, was superintendent of state aid highway construction in 1926 on part of the Waterford road from the so-called Boober turn, north of Norway Lake, westward to the intersection of the Doughty and Morrill roads. For years taking care of surface water along this highway has been a problem and the question of culverts was not finally settled until the end of the job, sometime in September. Mr. Towne said he was hired by the State Highway Department and worked according to specifications, in conjunction with the District Supervisor and Selectmen. The supervisor located a culvert beneath the intersection of the highways. This culvert, which was 100 feet long, was built on Mr. Boober's field near several apple trees and in front of a gate to that field.

Last spring and during recent hard rains, Mr. Boober alleged water covered much of the field and extended to his buildings on the Greenwood road. During the time he could not take his cows into the barn yard. Water entered the cellar under his dwelling, and the plaintiff further alleged that a channel was cut from the culvert into his field and that numerous apple trees were greatly damaged. Mr. Boober testified that he never gave permission to run water onto his land and had since protested to Mr. Towne and to the selectmen.

Witnesses testified to high water conditions around the Boober farm and told of the amount of damage through the sixteen inch pipe at various times.

Howard H. Potter, civil engineer of Norway, explained that the general slope of land is north and across Mr. Boober's farm. Unfortunately, the buildings are in the general line of drainage. In his opinion, the culvert as located was the most feasible and least expensive way to handle water flowing from height of land west of the culverts. With unlimited means, he said, a costly system might be installed from the Doughty Corner along the highway for some 1600 feet to the Boober Corner and across the Greenwood or Norway road onto other property.

Testimony was introduced showing unusual condition that existed for years and the section in evidence had been hard to keep up, because of washouts starting at the Doughty corner from the Doughty road from higher land west of the intersection. One other culvert southerly on the Doughty road, was alleged to conduct most of the drainage toward the Doughty field, on the opposite side of the Waterford road from the Boober place. For this reason, the defendant alleged Mr. Boober was getting no more drainage than before the culvert in question was put in.

All the evidence was presented Monday. On Tuesday forenoon, Justice Sturgis directed the jury to return a verdict for the defendant. Exceptions will be taken, it is believed.

Mr. Boober was represented by W. G. Conary and Benjamin Blanchard of Bangor. A. J. Stearns and Harry Manser of Auburn were counsel for Mr. Towne.

Criminal business started Tuesday under the direction of County Attorney Wm. Planagan of Rumford.

The first case was State vs. Charles Johnstone of Dixfield, who was charged with breaking and entering in the night time at the residence of Dr. Shea at Rumford.

Deputy Sheriff Rodrick testified to seeing the respondent walking around the buildings early one morning in June and observing him the night of October 10, when he fired several shots into the ground. One of the bullets glanced and hit Johnstone in the leg. Other officers hurried the victim to the hospital where he remained for some time. Sheriff Rodrick said the respondent threatened attack and tried to run away.

The respondent admitted walking around the residence and said he was looking for beer. There was a light in the lower tenement so he thought the house might be one of the places where beer was being brewed and he was going very near the cellar window and his actions with the officer were in the belief a hold-up was staged. Officers said no weapons were found on him during a search at the hospital. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Adelard Cromer of Rumford pleaded not guilty to operating an auto while under the influence of liquor. This was an appeal from the Rumford Municipal Court.

According to the state, the respondents were several cases, in which Benjamin J. Russell of Lovell brought suit against Joseph E. McAllister of Lovell for breach of contract. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant refused to accept a house he built for him, and that the sum being $1,500 as agreed upon.

The defense admitted the contract but alleged the work was defective and that the stipulated time and charged inferior material. In fact, the job was not satisfactory. He alleged that when a settlement was urged, the plaintiff added $200 to the price and he refused to accept the building.
